ATTACK ON OUR FREEDOMS

LILLEY: As country slumbers, Liberals pass C-10

By Brian Lilley, Toronto Sun

Jun 22, 2021

Contentious bill passes third reading after marathon 14-hour house session

While most Canadians were sound asleep, the Trudeau Liberals — along with their allies in the Bloc and NDP — were busy passing a bill to regulate your social media feed.

The controversial Bill C-10 passed third reading shortly after 1:30 Tuesday morning after a 14-hour marathon sitting of the House.

One thing is certain, the Liberals desperately want this bill to become law.

It's a bill that, if ever implemented, will fundamentally change the way Canadians experience the internet.

Why the rush to regulate which Instagram stories you see or which YouTube videos you watch?

So far, the Trudeau Liberals have resorted to shutting down debate at the committee level, a drastic step only done three times in Canadian Parliamentary history.

They have even passed amendments in secret, something the House Speaker ruled out of order.

And for the last several months the Liberals have rejected calls to insert language back into the bill to protect individual users of social media platforms from being regulated by the government.

That language was originally in the bill until the Liberals moved and passed a motion to remove such protections.

Conservative MP Alain Rayes moved a motion to restore that very protection for social media users as the bill was in the final stages of being passed but it was voted down 200-117.

On one side were the Liberals, Bloc and NDP — who think the government should regulate your social media use — and on the other side the Conservatives and former Liberal MP and justice minister, Jody Wilson-Raybould.

Under C-10, anyone with any level of success online will be subject to the kinds of regulations currently placed on CTV, CBC and Global.

The Liberals also say this bill isn't about deciding what you can or will see on social media but then can't clearly answer basic questions about what the bill will do should it become law.

Heritage Minister Steven Guilbeault has waffled several times when asked if this bill will give Canada's broadcast regulator, the CRTC, the ability to change the algorithms of social media platforms.

The clear answer to anyone who has read the bill and knows how the CRTC works is yes.

For the average social media user, that means what you get to see won't be set by you or even the social media platform you are using but by an unnamed, unseen, government bureaucrat.

Someone with no connection to you, or your social media platform of choice, will decide if you get to watch a video from your friends or will be served up the Canadian content they have decided is good for you.

Bill C-36

Justin Trudeau has introduced the worst censorship law of any western democracy

By EZRA LEVANT, Rebel News
June 24, 2021

Yesterday the Trudeau Liberals introduced their second censorship bill, called C-36. That's not to be confused with their first censorship bill, C-10.

It helps to look at these things in a logical order. C-10, their bill that just passed the House of Commons, allows the government to take over the Internet. It puts things under government jurisdiction. It lets the government regulate websites like it has always regulated big TV broadcasters and radio stations.

So Trudeau is the boss of YouTube in Canada now.

But this next bill, that was just introduced yesterday — it had to wait until the first one was through the House of Commons. They didn't want anyone to see the next step in their plan until the first one was passed.

Bill C-36 is called An Act to amend the Criminal Code and the Canadian Human Rights Act and to make related amendments to another Act (hate propaganda, hate crimes and hate speech).

OK, well hate propaganda is already in our Criminal Code.

Section 318 of our Criminal Code makes it a crime to advocate for genocide; Section 319 makes it a crime to incite hatred. I think it should be a crime to incite violence; but hatred is a feeling, a human emotion.

I just think it's bizarre to make emotions, even bad emotions, into a crime. It's actions we want to criminalize, actions that hurt people. Not what you think or feel.

Those are already in our criminal law. But this new bill goes much, much further.

I have read it through twice now, and I have to say this is the worst law I have ever seen in a western democracy.

It is legislating cancel culture, in the worst way. I'll take you through it.

Normally I'd just summarize it, but I think it's important that you see the details for yourself. It's been about 24 hours and I actually haven't seen any media treatment of this part of the bill, which is odd.

It's not very long — 26 pages; but six of those pages are blank or just title pages; and half of it is the French version. So there is only about ten pages of reading involved.

So how did all the media coverage I read so far miss so much?

On tonight's show, we'll go through Bill C-36 in full.

I see a lot of hate in Trudeau, frankly — a hate for our country's history, including a hate for Sir John A. Macdonald himself. I think Trudeau hates opponents, hates critics, hates Alberta to be honest, hates anyone who tells him no.

We know who he loves though. We know who he admires. He's always loved tyrannies. He loved Castro, he loves China, just like his dad loves the Soviet Union.

This bill, C-36, is not a law that any democracy could have. It criminalizes feelings — it admits that it does. It allows secret trials and secret informants. It's a censorship law.

But more than any of that, this law allows Trudeau's attack dogs — including his paid race hustlers like the "Canadian Anti-Hate Network", and hucksters like Yaniv, to milk the system, to secretly seek vengeance against their enemies, and to team up with Trudeau to destroy what little political opposition remains in this country.

This bill is the worst bill I've ever seen.

And I am 100 per cent certain that it will become law — with the unanimous support of the NDP, the Bloc, and 90 per cent of the media and lawyers in this country.

PAULETTE'S CARAVAN

At the time writing, Paulette is on her sixth week of being on the road, travelling all of Alberta in her RV. This lady, on her own, has been collecting signatures at every turn. Her plan is to be in Edmonton for 04 July weekend.

Many thanks to those that have helped along her long trail, donated funds to keep her RV, FREEDOM in gas and chugging along, and to those, especially her brother, who have provided for her security.

ABSP STORES

I know! I know! Where are the stores?

Even with the best planning, something will always go awry. We have had a number of delays in opening the stores, which are beyond our control. All that can be said, we are getting very close to their opening. Once that happens, this editor will take stiff Scotch.

There will actually be two stores:

Party

Administrative Merchandise. Members and constituencies may select such items as tri-fold brochures, doorknob hangers, FAQ Sheets and business cards, as well as posters and banners. The documents are of the typical high quality that Imperial Printing manufactures. Imperial Printing is based in Edmonton. Packages will be available for purchase in various sized bundles. On purchase of these document packages, copyright consent is automatically approved. <http://www.imperialptg.com/>

Party Promotional Merchandise. This will include, stickers, ball caps, t-shirts, mugs, magnets, almost everything about ABSP and Alberta Statehood you can imagine. The company providing the bulk of the material is Corporate Promotional Products Inc. based in Calgary. <https://www.corppromo.com/>

Both stores have Secure PayPal, credit and debit cards payments available.

ABSP COPYRIGHT

ABSP reserves the right to protection of all material, including but not limited to the party's name and graphic logo as reserved by the Government of Alberta, all documentation and promotional materials related to ABSP or the Alberta Statehood Party Foundation.
